

Art has always been for me a means of processing experience, a way to celebrate and to mourn, to rail against the intolerable, and to navigate in the mysterious.